

Joseph N Mott – FACHE

Joe Mott earned a BS of Economics and an MBA from BYU in Provo, Utah. Upon completion of his education in 1985, Joe began his career with Intermountain in the Central Office where he spent seven years in the Capital Planning and Budgeting Departments.

Joe spent the next 20 years at Primary Children's Hospital as CFO, COO, and as CEO from 2007 to 2011. While at Primary, Joe led the creation of the hospital's first Patient Safety Plan, redesigned the Quality Improvement department, created the Systems Improvement Department, developed a new payer contracting model for payers, and implemented managerial accountability models that helped the hospital reach national rankings in quality while also becoming among the lowest cost children's hospitals in the country.

In 2011, Joe was appointed VP for Healthcare Transformation for Intermountain Healthcare. In this role he leads the development and implementation of Intermountain's Shared Accountability strategy – to move Intermountain to population-based payment.

He has served as the Chair of Child Health Quality Council for the National Association of Children's Hospitals and for seven years on the Davis County Board of Health including a term as Board Chair.

Joe and his wife, Ellen, live in Bountiful, Utah and are the parents of five children.
