Quality Health Network

Dick Thompson is the Executive Director and CEO of Quality Health Network (QHN), in Grand Junction, Colorado. QHN is a non-profit collaborative and was the technology member partner of The Colorado Beacon Consortium (CBC). As one of the first Health Information Exchanges (HIE) in the nation, QHN is proud to be celebrating a decade of improving healthcare through Health IT.

QHN's HIE infrastructure includes data delivery systems, data warehousing, risk stratification, predictive analytics, preventive and clinical decision support tools and provider alerts systems.

QHN was a Regional Extension Center provider and is a participant in the Nationwide Health Information Network (eHealth Exchange). Dick serves as an advisor to numerous state and national Health IT initiatives and is a founding member and Board Chair of the Strategic Health Information Exchange Collaborative (SHIEC), serves on the Board of Colorado's Center for Improving Value in Healthcare (CIVHC), the RMHP Prime Executive Committee, and the QHN representative for the BC3 Initiative, a collaboration of organizations in Colorado, sponsored by The Colorado Health Foundation, working to achieve the Triple Aim.
