

Christine Watts
Chief Enterprise Architect
University of Chicago Medicine

Christine is a seasoned IT professional and thought leader with experience in many industries, most recently serving as Executive Director and Chief Enterprise Architect at the University of Chicago Medicine, responsible for governing IT architecture including principles, strategy & roadmaps, and alignment of IT spending with business strategy, goals & objectives. In addition Christine has execution responsibilities for UCMs Enterprise Data Management that includes the Enterprise Data Warehouse and BI tools, Enterprise Data Integration including an Enterprise Service Bus based leveraging the Tibco full suite of capabilities, Enterprise Technology Services that includes all network across the entire health system and Data Center operations.

Christine served previously with Verizon as an Executive Consulting Partner in their Global Professional Services Group focused on aligning Verizon capabilities in the financial sector to their business objectives and developing omni-channel capabilities to address emerging market needs. Prior to that, served as Vice President of Consumer Banking and Lending in Business Technology at Discover Financial Services and also led the organization in the creation of an Enterprise Information Architecture practice. Christine is regarded as an expert technologist with a deep understanding of the business and technology. Christine has worked across many industries; Retail, Financial, Manufacturing, Insurance, Utilities, Healthcare, her ability to adapt and learn has allowed her to be successful in every position she has held over her 30 year career in IT.